2026 AFT CONVENTION REPORT

HPAE DELEGATES HELP SET AFT'S NATIONAL AGENDA

HPAE members brought the voice of nurses and health professionals to the 2026 AFT Convention in Washington, D.C.

Forty-three HPAE delegates representing locals across New Jersey and Philadelphia joined nearly 2,500 delegates from throughout the country at the AFT's 89th Convention, held July 16–19. Delegates debated and adopted national union policy, celebrated organizing and bargaining victories, elected AFT officers and committed to the fights ahead. HPAE delegates played an active role throughout the convention, participating in committee meetings and floor debate, joining healthcare workers from across the country and building solidarity with our fellow New Jersey affiliates.

Delegates Advance Healthcare and Worker Priorities

Convention delegates adopted resolutions establishing AFT policy on safe staffing, corporate control of healthcare, immigrant rights the 2026 elections, and more:

Expanding Code Red and the fight for safe staffing

Delegates committed AFT to an expanded national Code Red campaign, including a goal of winning enforceable, ratio-based safe-staffing laws in at least 10 additional states by 2028. The resolution also calls for federal staffing legislation and greater strategic and financial assistance for bargaining and legislative campaigns. The convention specifically recognized staffing-ratio language won in numerous New Jersey contracts, reflecting the organizing and mobilization of HPAE members.

Building Power for the 2026 Elections

Delegates committed to a major member-to-member political mobilization ahead of the November elections. The AFT's national goal is to recruit 28,000 election volunteers, approximately 1.5 percent of every local union's membership, to help mobilize 200,000 AFT voters. For HPAE, that translates into a clear organizing challenge: recruit 225 election volunteers, an average of 12 members per local, and build a member-led program capable of reaching coworkers directly.

Debbie White re-elected to AFT Executive Council

HPAE President Debbie White, RN, was re-elected as an AFT vice president and member of the union's national Executive Council. Debbie will continue bringing the experience and priorities of HPAE nurses and health professionals into the AFT's national leadership. Delegates elected 43 vice presidents to serve alongside AFT President Randi Weingarten, Secretary-Treasurer Fedrick Ingram and Executive Vice President, Evelyn DeJesus.

Standing with immigrant families: Delegates adopted a resolution condemning current ICE operations and calling for stronger protections for immigrant workers, patients, students and families. It supports keeping immigration enforcement out of hospitals, schools, houses of worship and other sensitive locations; requiring judicial warrants; protecting due-process rights; and expanding training and resources for locals responding to immigration enforcement actions.

Patients over profits: Delegates affirmed healthcare as a human right and committed the AFT to opposing the financialization of healthcare, including private-equity and for-profit control of hospitals and essential health services. The resolution supports protecting community hospitals from profit-driven closures, challenging excessive consolidation and continuing the fight for universal healthcare.

AFT Posts Highest-Ever Membership as Union Popularity Surges

The AFT has reached a record 1.8 million members, with nearly 60,000 workers in 179 new units joining over the last two years. Healthcare has been a major driver of that growth, with AFT Nurses and Health Professionals now representing over 250,000 healthcare workers nationwide and ranking as the fastest-growing healthcare union in the country and the second largest nurses union in the AFL-CIO. Our newest affiliate is the 1,500-member Hawaii Nurses and Healthcare Professionals.

New Jersey Solidarity

HPAE delegates joined AFT New Jersey members for a joint delegate luncheon during the convention, bringing together educators, higher education workers, nurses and health professionals from across the state.

Barbara Rosen receives AFT Living the Legacy Award

HPAE First Vice President, Barbara Rosen, received the AFT's Living the Legacy Award, recognizing over 50 years of service. Established by the AFT Women's Rights Committee, the award honors women whose leadership, activism and mentorship have strengthened their unions and communities.
